Crew Resources Management for Operational Crew

Operational Excellence through Safety Leadership, Resilient Design, and Exceptional Human Performance

This workshop is a comprehensive safety and human performance training program, modeled after similar programs used in commercial and military aviation, called Crew Resource Management. CRM for Operational Teams also includes elements of system safety to help participants gain a broader understanding of how a diverse approach to planning and decision-making may help to achieve desired safety and operational performance goals. CRM for Operational Teams contains essential elements of team performance and we also provide guidance for implementing CRM training in your organization.

Workshop Benefits

This workshop are to help participants understand; how to improve effective teamwork, how to distribute leadership for streamlined decision-making, how to develop team members into more effective leaders for improved team performance, how to develop effective communication techniques, how to develop methods to frame and maintain job focus, how to plan jobs with safety designed-in from the outset and techniques to maintain this focus, how to develop resilience through planning and backup options as well as adaptive capacity to maintain levels of performance and safety as job demands change, how to be effective decision-makers, how team members can support each other for mission accomplishment (including the concept of assertiveness), how to conduct risk management activities in real-time while jobs are in progress, and how to integrate effective team strategies into daily operations.

Who Should Attend

This workshop is designed for multiple employee levels, including line operator employees, supervisors, team leaders/managers, and executive leaders. CRM Training is also designed to help Safety Professionals gain an understanding of effective ways to lead and manage teams in high-hazard environments.
